

The Lord from eternity, who is Jehovah, came into the world to subdue the hells and to glorify His Human; and without this no flesh could have been saved, and those are saved who believe in Him. 616

A person is conjoined with the Lord by faith in Him, and through conjunction with the Lord he is saved.

To have faith in the Lord is to have confidence that He will save; and because none can have such confidence except someone who leads a good life, therefore this also is understood by having faith in the Lord. AR 67

Jehovah God Himself came into the world to deliver people and angels from the assault and violence of hell, and thus from damnation. 617

He did this by means of combats against hell and by victories over it, whereby He subjugated it, reduced it to order, and brought it under obedience to Himself.

He also formed a new heaven, and through this established a new church.

By this means Jehovah God put Himself into the power of saving all who believe in Him and who do His precepts. Thus He redeemed all in the whole world, and all in the whole heaven. From Canons: Redemption VI
